

Emergency Power Systems plc

Emergency Power Systems Ltd are one of the UK's leading designers and producers of standby power solutions. The company manufactures bespoke and off the shelf standby power packages for applications ranging from emergency lighting systems through to complex IT backup generators and diesel standby equipment.

Previously based in North Derbyshire, the company's ambitious expansion plans required additional space and improved access to the motorway network, combined with the infrastructure to support its manufacturing operations. The new site located close to the M1 houses a purpose-built production and storage area complete with excellent transhipment facilities and security provision.

Managing Director Derek Plowright praised the help he has received from Sheffield First for Investment.

“We were looking for a freehold site with fast and easy access to motorway network, providing us with the space we need now as well as potential for further expansion in line with our plans for the business. With professional assistance from Sheffield First in terms of identifying suitable premises, facilitating access to grant funding and helping with the acquisition of the freehold, we have completed the move quickly and cost-effectively,” he stated. “The new site is within easy travelling distance of our previous location, which has enabled our entire skilled workforce to make the move with us and ensured continuity of quality and supply for our customers.”
