

4Com Ltd

Opening of Northern Office

4Com first contacted Sheffield First for Investment in November 2003. The photograph below shows the Mayor of Sheffield, Councillor Michael Pye opening the company's new facility in the city in July 2004. 4Com, a telecommunications company based in Salisbury, have experienced rapid growth in their short history and increasing business in the North of England led the company's directors to look for an additional office in this part of the country. Sheffield First for Investment were able to host 4Com on their first visit to Sheffield and arranged viewings of possible property options. 4Com soon selected suitable premises at President Park and arrangements were quickly underway to establish the base. Sheffield First for Investment continued to provide support in the lead up to the office opening including recommending decorators, sign writers and caterers.

JOBMatch were also providing their expert advise in the lead up to the office opening and assisting 4Com with a number of recruitment issues.

Relocating some of the team from 4Com's head office in Salisbury was essential to the successful start up of the company in Sheffield. All were professional young men with different budgetary and accommodation requirements. Whilst one request was for help to find a smart city apartment with restaurants and bars on the doorstep, another was for a place in a quieter suburb that offered the opportunity to get out mountain biking.

Following personal meetings with those individuals, Relocate 2 Sheffield, with support from Sheffield First for Investment, was able to put forward some positive images and information about living in Sheffield as well as being able to source suitable accommodation. All those who have made the move are pleasantly surprised at the excellent lifestyle on offer in Sheffield and are taking positive reports back to their colleagues in Salisbury.
